Enemy Alien

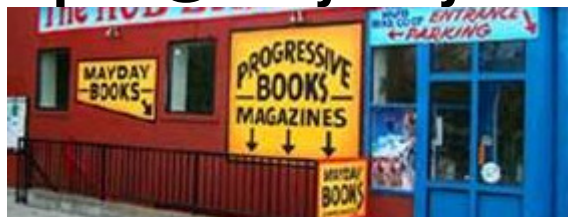

A documentary by Konrad Aderer

Enemy Alien, a first-person documentary, is the gripping story of the fight to free Farouk Abdel-Muhti, a gentle but indomitable Palestinian-born human rights activist detained in a post-9/11 sweep of Muslim immigrants. Told through the eyes of the filmmaker, the grandson of Japanese Americans interned during World War II, this documentary takes on unprecedented intimacy and historical resonance.

Join us for the screening and post-movie discussion on Farouk, the campaign to free him and the continuing struggle against government harassment of political activists and immigrants.
